

Architecture | Interior Design | Project Management

Mid-Weight Interior Designer (Freelance Contract – 3 Months)

Project London is hiring a mid-weight interior designer on an initial three-month contract to join our team in Parsons Green, London.

We are an award-winning interior architecture and design studio delivering high-end residential homes across Prime Central London and the Home Counties, with a growing presence in Dubai. We bring architecture, interior design, procurement and project management together under one roof to deliver fully integrated, detail-led projects from concept through to completion.

Alongside the studio sits Cor Domi, our bespoke kitchen and joinery business, allowing our designers to work closely with specialist makers to develop highly considered, bespoke interior elements.

We are currently working across a strong pipeline of live and upcoming projects and are looking for an experienced designer to support delivery over the coming months.

The Role

This is a hands-on contract role for a designer with strong high-end residential experience who can step directly into live projects and run them day to day.

You will work closely with senior designers and the wider team, taking ownership of projects from the outset while being supported where needed. You will be expected to work with pace, precision, and a high level of autonomy, contributing directly to both design output and project delivery.

Responsibilities

Design & Delivery

- Take ownership of projects across concept, design development and delivery, ensuring they remain on programme and on budget
- Produce clear, well-resolved client presentations and design packages
- Develop space planning, finishes, materials and FF&E selections with a strong balance of creativity and practicality
- Produce and coordinate drawing packages alongside architects and technical team members
- Maintain a high level of detail from concept through to final snagging

Sourcing & Suppliers

- Research and specify appropriate materials, finishes and suppliers across high-end residential schemes

- Prepare detailed schedules and specifications for procurement and delivery
- Work closely with the procurement team through ordering, logistics and installation
- Collaborate with Cor Domi on bespoke kitchen and joinery design

Studio & Standards

- Represent Project London professionally on all projects and site visits
 - Contribute to internal design reviews and support junior team members where required
-

What You Will Bring

- Degree in Interior Design or Architecture
 - Minimum 5 years' experience in high-end residential design
 - Proven ability to run multiple live projects simultaneously
 - Strong knowledge of UK building regulations, including experience with listed and heritage properties
 - Confident communicator with strong presentation skills
 - Detail-driven, process-led approach
 - Ability to work independently and integrate quickly into an active studio
 - Availability to start at short notice
 - Right to live and work in the UK
-

Software

- Vectorworks (2D essential)
 - Adobe InDesign
 - Microsoft Office
 - SketchUp / visualisation software (beneficial, not essential)
-

What We Offer

- Competitive day rate, dependent on experience
 - Hybrid working (3 days in Parsons Green studio, 2 days remote)
 - High-quality, design-led residential projects
 - A collaborative and ambitious studio environment
-

How to Apply

Please submit your CV and portfolio via the application link, including your availability and day rate expectations.

Additional Information

- This is a full-time freelance contract of approximately three months, with potential extension depending on workload
- Candidates must already be based in London with relevant experience
- Applicants must have the right to work in the UK
- Immediate start preferred
- Only shortlisted candidates will be contacted
- No recruitment agencies